Great Sourcebook of Ideas for Custom Handcrafted Furniture By Alan Fishman This handsomely photographed book is filled with one of a kind custom made furniture built by craftsmen in the UK. The book is well organized and the photographs are excellent. This book is meant to be a sourcebook of ideas for engaging with your local craftsman and it fills that role admirably.

We are entering a new era of eclecticism in interior design. People who are serious about their living environment are turning to designer craftsman to create unique items of furniture to suit their precise needs and enhance the aesthetic ambience of their home and workplace. By its nature, this individualistic trend cannot be served by the normal retail infrastructure and it can be difficult to access makers and their products. Bespoke resolves this problem by supplying the details of 190 leading makers, the galleries and exhibitions that display their work and an explanation of the typical commissioning process. On a room by room basis, a wide variety of individual maker's work is shown to give the reader an idea of their different styles.
