Invaluable ReferenceBy Adaire CainTo know what antique pottery looks like when you see it you need to have studied an excellent guide that has pictures as clear and fine in detail as you can get. You need the items cataloged, to be presented in chronological order and grouped according to type. The information contained must be accurate and concise. This is as close as you will come aside from working for a museum, fine antique dealer or auction house. This is why this reference was created and why it is considered the best of its kind.
