Robert Charles Rust : Roycroft Campus (Postcard History) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Roycroft Campus (Postcard History):

My dual interests in genealogy and American history have led me to its "Images of America" series time and time again. Recently I visited a relative's collection of papers at the Western History Collection at the University of Oklahoma. A summary of the collection mentioned "Roycroft book." I Googled "Roycroft" and read about that portion of the American Arts and Crafts Movement started by Elbert Hubbard in East Aurora, New York. I did a search on and up popped this wonderful book, "The Roycroft Campus" by Robert Rust and Kitty Turgeon. It is 128 pages in length and full of photographs. Anyone interested in the Arts and Crafts movement in the USA, the life of Elbert Hubbard, or in East Aurora, New York, will find this book infinitely readable and well-researched. The photographs are the jewels of the book.

The history of the American Arts and Crafts movement is embodied in the Roycroft community. Founded by Elbert Green Hubbard, the Roycroft is more than just a National Historic Landmark in the charming village of East Aurora, New York. Roycroft's artisans and craftspersons flourished from 1898 to 1938, producing some of America's best and most important crafts, furniture, and books. This visual history through postcards and motto cards produced by the Roycrofters' presses shares the story and philosophy of their movement. Here, the 1898 postcards featuring "the Characters of the place" and the years of the "Roycroft Renaissance" show the growth and continuity.
