Lots of good information, great price guide and seems to be accurate. However, how it is organized is not for me. They organize the book by main denomination, which is great, but then by series instead of date. A good example is like looking up a $1 silver certificate from 1923, you first go to $1 section, then find the silver certificate section, then date. BUT, if you don't know exactly what you have, you hunt and peck to find what looks like what you have.....sometimes it's close and then you hunt to find the match.....frustrating. If it were done by date first everything would be so much more simple.
